

A historic restaurant awakens to new life

Nestled in the historic Elbe landscape, today's Ranunkelhof tells of a rich past that stretches back to the 19th century. What is now a place of hospitality and encounters began with the entrepreneurial vision of the Fritzsche family: In 1834, the family ventured into long-distance trade, shipping their pottery down the Elbe River to Hamburg. The property soon became a social hub: advertisements announced fairs, archery competitions, cider festivals, and slaughter feasts – the precursors of the vibrant inn culture that continues to characterize the establishment today.

Probably the most significant turning point came in 1929, when the Dreiseithof officially took on a socially relevant place in Copitz as Fritzsches Gasthof. The inn became a place where trade, craftsmanship and hospitality merged in a unique way – a lively meeting place that reflected the atmosphere of the Elbe landscape.

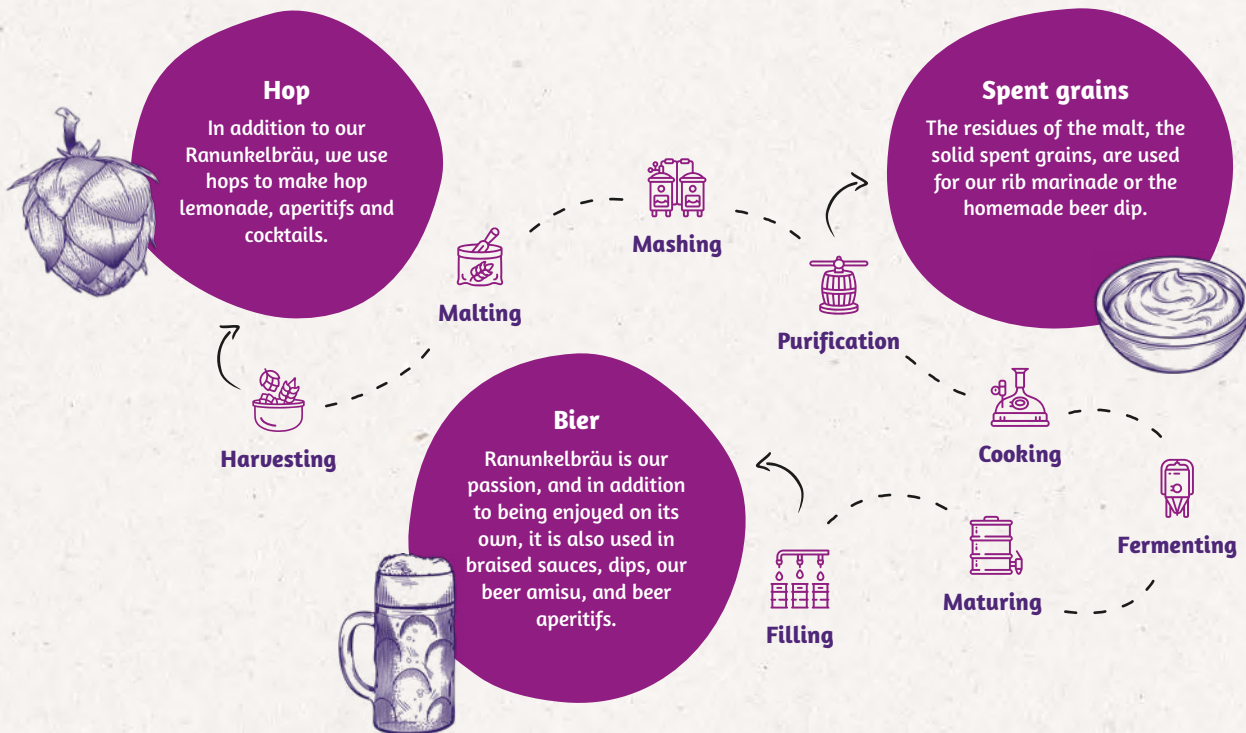

This spirit of conviviality and hospitality can still be felt today: the Ranunkelhof continues the traditions of Fritzsche's inn and brings them into the present day. Whether over a freshly tapped beer or a hearty meal – the Ranunkelhof invites you to continue writing the story that once began in Fritzsche's inn and now shines in new splendour.

Our in-house brewery

In our brewery, we passionately brew our unique Ranunkelbräu, which is served fresh from the barrel in our inn. And not only that: We use everything that's produced during the brewing process in our dishes and drinks, from hops and the byproduct spent grain to the finished beer. Whether sweet or savory, liquid or solid – try our menu!

In addition to our year-round light and red beers, we also offer:

Saxon Wine Way

It starts right – the Ranunkelhof – the Saxon Wine Route, which winds along the sunny slopes of the Elbe to Diesbar-Seußlitz. Around 60 kilometres long, it connects picturesque villages, historic wineries and traditional vineyards along the idyllically flowing Elbe.

Some of our wines come from exactly there – from steep vineyards with a view of the Elbe valley, lovingly tended by winegrowing families who practise their craft. Winegrowing families who have been practising their craft for generations. Taste for yourself – and discover at our table how much character there is in Saxony's wines!
